

960 Goss St., Denver, Colo.

Nov. 27, 1891.

Dr. S. Watson:

My dear Sir, Enclosed you will find a draft for three dollars. Please send me the pamphlets soon if you can.

The description of Gallium cristatum is not given in any book that I have. I collected it at Steamboat Springs, Routt Co., Colo. Early in the season, it is abundant but, in July, when I found it, there were only the merest vestiges left. I think that I can get some next year from people who live there.
I don't suppose that I shall be able to go there again for some time. It is eighty miles from the railroad through a very wild and rough country. Expensive traveling too.

I beg your pardon if I annoyed you by my request concerning the atriplex. I think that you are right (Eastwood) (over.)

but I find that usually we learn to do by asking and so I do not hesitate. Thanking you for your prompt reply, I remain, Yours sincerely,
Alice Eastwood.
